Activate Android Auto Coolwalk with the latest v8.6 beta update. As we previously reported, the new Android Auto 8.5 beta update will enable the Coolwalk UI for everyone. Google's brand new Android Auto user interface is now available for every smartphone and car head unit. We also have a guide on how to force turn on Coolwalk on any AA-enabled device. Download the latest Android Auto 8.6 Beta APK here with Collwalk, stability improvements and several bug fixes. Google has unveiled the upcoming Android Auto user interface called Coolwalk with split screen and multitasking features. You can use maps, play music and view important notifications in one interface. This is a great car display design because you don't have to keep switching between apps to get important information. The new Android Auto UI was already tested in 2021 and Google implemented the code with AA v8.0+. However, it will only be enabled with the latest beta version of Android Auto 8.5 or higher on Android 8.0+ devices. Auto Head Unit Seevral Android Auto with Coolwalk Interface While the beta testing program may be full, you can also download the latest Android Auto 8.6 APK for your Android 8.0+ device and enjoy the new interface. What's new in Android Auto 8.6 beta, some smartphones may have a fix for the Start menu customization bug. When trying to launch the Launchpad customization menu in the phone app, the app crashes. White still doesn't work. What is Android Auto Codwalk UI? Google introduced a new Android Auto user interface called Coolwalk sometime last year and also at the IO event in May 2022. It has basic multitasking features via split screen. You can use maps, play music and view important notifications in one interface. This is a great car view theme because you don't have to keep switching to other apps to get important information. Coolwalk allows the user to run many applications simultaneously in an interface that appears to be tabbed. Thatbetter organized and displays information on a split screen. Coolwalk has an interface inspired by the Apple CarPlay dashboard. According to the Android Authority, the key features are: Google Maps is now larger and more accessible on the new dashboard, which is closer to the driver. The multimedia map on the dashboard has a completely new look and dynamically grows and shrinks. Users now have more layout options on large screens with the option to have the map take up all of Android Auto's space. A new dock has been added to the bar to make it easier to switch between recently used apps with a single tap.More system components now use Material You and feature modernized UI elements and layouts. Access Google Assistant recommendations for music and other media with a single swipe across the Media tab on the dashboard.
