

Find lost android phone using imei number

I'm not robot  reCAPTCHA

Continue

Android devices

Name: [REDACTED]

More data stored about this device

Name: [REDACTED]

More data stored about this device

Are you looking for a way to track the lost Android phone online by IMEI for free and without any software? In this article you will find the best IMEI tracking application and learn how to quickly and easily track any smartphone. You can lose your Android telephone due to theft or leaving it in a cafe or even in the subway. When you need this, you start looking for and say: "If I can't find my smartphone in all pockets, where can it be? Lost the phone? How to track the lost Android location by IMEI for free? At this stage, you will begin to remember all the important data stored on your device. At this moment, you break between what to do next. This is where online platforms or phone tracking applications will come in handy. Just enter how to track the lost Android by IMEI for free, and you will have millions of options to find your phone or find it according to the result. Millions of phones are stolen or losing. Almost all owners try to return their Android telephone in different ways, but always in vain. But it was ten years ago. With the IMEI tracker for a lost cell phone, the chances of returning the phone are higher. You can start with a message about the problem to the relevant authorities. In this case, the police enters into business. However, in most cases, this can take some time, and the restoration of the phone is often impossible. The best option in this case is the IMEI online tracking application. In addition to waiting for an answer from the authorities, this method is the simplest and safest way to find a lost mobile phone. Free tracking of your mobile phone on the Internet by IMEI is a popular method due to its high degree of success in finding a lost phone. You can use this method in different ways: using Track My Android for free web applications. This is an effective way to find a phone. But the work requires a preliminary installation. However, when you drop the phone to factory settings, it can no longer be tracked. Using the IMEI online response method. This is an effective method with a higher probability of success. It has various restrictions and does not depend on the installed applications. Also, changing the IMEI number is difficult and quite difficult, if not impossible. This gives you more chances to restore the lost phone. What is the IMEI number on the Android phone? Brief review of the international mobile device identifier represents a numerical code with 14 to 17 digital code. It is a mobile identity form that makes every mobile phone unique. Apart from being a mobile device, it works just like your identity. Using IMEI you can give the Global System for Mobile Communications (GSM) or its equivalent Universal Mobile Telecommunications Service (UMTS) to prevent calls from a stolen or lost phone. What is the purpose of IMEI? Knowing your IMEI number is useful if your phone is lost or stolen. With this number, you will have full control on your phone even if not with you. You can try to restore online websites, applications or relevant authorities. You can also make it useless, so he can't use whoever plays. This can be done by contacting the device operator and the device is lost to the blacklist with the IMEI number of the Android phone. This means that the device will no longer search or receive a call. In addition, even after replacing the SIM card with a new one, it will not be able to connect to the network over the mobile network. When you decide to buy an Android phone, you will need an IMEI number. You can be sure that a stolen item will not reach you because telephone thefts are common. It will also inform you if it is compensated or on the black list. Finally, you use the number to get information about the features of the phone. This includes model, brand, production date, version and various technical specifications. How to find IMEI number on the phone? Now that you know the main role of your phone number, let's look at different ways of getting it. From your phone *# 06# button. The first way is the easiest. *# 06# key, the number will appear immediately on the phone screen. If you have two nests on your device and use both slots, you will get an IMEI for each SIM slot. The second way is to check the number in the phone settings. After that, you need to click the Settings icon, then a setting list will appear. Progress on the list to find the option for your device or system. After receiving, click on it, go to the list and click the situation á or phone. You can find the follow-up IMEI number below the given list. Even though this procedure varies with an Android cell phone you can often find the IMEI number contained in the setting option. This can be like pressure on the back of the phone for those who have no removable back. Or it is located on the back of the phone and takes out the battery for those with a rear cover. In addition, the IMEI number can be found on the SIM card compartment for some telephone brands. The last option is to check the number on your cell phone packaging if you have another. You will find the IMEI number in the form of an imprint on the glue somewhere in the packaging of your Android cell phone. Regardless of which option you choose to get your IMEI number, remember to write it down in a safe place. Maybe you need it one day. Be careful, do not share your name with others. Someone who is suspicious can apply their number to a stolen device so as not to be put on the black list. Under certain circumstances, your phone can be lost or stolen, but you have not noted the IMEI number anywhere. So what to do in this case? It is very simple if you have synchronized your Android with your Google account, you can access your IMEI number via the Google Dashboard website. Simply access your Google account with the same account with which you have synchronized your phone. So you have to click on Android (Localizer VOS Appiils) to get a list of registered devices. After synchronization, Google always records the IMEI number of each device. Various cell phone tracker apps are available on Google Play for Android. Each application has its own criteria to find a lost phone. Some need a cell phone number to pursue a lost device. Others must be preinstalled on their lost Android phone so that they work. Every application has advantages and disadvantages. But in this case we will find an Android phone that has been lost on the Internet based on its IMEI number. Some disadvantages can occur when monitoring IMEI numbers. Type of the phone switched off, and that is less because you can still follow the position, it was the last time. Another disadvantage is to extinguish the IMEI and replace it with a new, valid. If that happens, forget the gadget. But thanks to the manufacturers of these Android telephones, this is a rather complicated and difficult process. Take your Android cell phone with the anti-booklet app and the IMEI tracker in betweenApplications that can be useful for monitoring the IMEI lost phone numbers. find my device and other things. In this case, we will show a simple step to use the IMEI tracker free online to find the missing phone. Step 1: Get another Android phone from a friend or family member; This is necessary to connect to the Internet. Then find and click on the device on Google Play. When Google Play is on, call Antitheft and IMEI tracker the entire phone, make sure your phone is Android 4.4 or higher. When you set this app in search results, click on it and download and start downloading the app. Note: AntiTheft and IMEI Tracker are free of charge. When the download process is complete and installed, start the application. At this point, the application will ask for access to certain files on the phone you use. They may include calls, individuals, text messages, location and storage. In this case, provide permission to access these files. You will need to provide an application application when looking for a lost Android phone. Step 3: Click "Continue" after allowing to switch to the next step. However, because it is a free online application, you will need to track ads/short ads to move to the next step. In fact, they are mandatory, but it is a great application. Unfortunately, you have to expect a short ad, otherwise you will not be in the next step. Step 4. IMEI TRACKER Online: Lost Android IMEI phone number. First check the code and make sure it's true. After reassurance, go by the text box and click on the road. A window displaying a list of locations appears. This location shows the location of the phone and the location where it is close. In addition to monitoring the missing phone, you can decide to install this app as a security measure without losing Android. If you lose your phone, there is an agent prevention of theft that can be useful. What happens when you find a lost Android mobile phone? After you find the phone, first call the police and check the places near the location if you are at a particular location. Then it means you are probably unconsciously behind. However, consider other measures if it is a new place you have never passed. It could be a great ideaGo to the person with your phone, but you never know what your intention is. Currently, the best decision is to take security personnel near your phone. This way you will ensure your safety and the ability to call by phone. If your device is too far, a small chance to call it is far enough. Consider terminating the device. Protects all your data and prevents access to all the information you see hidden. Alternatively, you can remotely decide to destroy all data and visit the carrier center to constantly lock the device. This renders the telephone unusable for the person received. Millions of Android phone users and buyers are growing every year, the growth is increasing. Considering the best phone at high prices, this has led to a demand for Android phones. As a result, phone theft is also increasing. Therefore, there is a great idea to pay particular attention to how you can manage your device in general. You never know who is going to be on your phone. So get into the habit of participating in one place. You never know when you need it. After stealing the IMEI number can change how difficult and tricky it can be. If you lose your phone, you need to respond quickly. Use the free online IMEI-Racker method. Take the above measures and take the lost Android phone as soon as possible. Also, you need to respond quickly after showing phone location. The weather turns black again and you never know when it will be online. As an enhanced measure, add additional security to the device to protect the data on you. This takes into account technological advancements on Android phones. Unlike in the past, you can now access your accounts over the phone. Special data, such as photos and other commercial files, may also be included. You can be exposed to blackmail in the wrong hands. See more

