Market research questionnaire cheat sheet

Use this cheat sheet for developing questionnaires that will assist you in your market research.

There are two types of market research: quantitative and qualitative. The first looks for pre-defined parameters that allow for input into spreadsheets and hard analysis. The second asks specific questions that require longer, more detailed answers. Here's what you need to know about developing questionnaires for both types of research. Before you begin though, decide which type of research will offer the most benefit to you, while asking the least amount of time from your customers.

Quantitative research

STEP 1

Before you undertake market research, there are six crucial questions that you need to answer before you can begin:

The Sample	Who are you going to ask?
The Method	How are you going to ask them?
The Questions	What are you going to ask them?
The Results	What will you do with the information?
The Cost	How much do you want to pay for the answer?
The Time Scale	By when do you need the information?

STEP 2

Once you understand what your research needs to achieve, you can then choose which type of questionnaire you will use.
