Kendo dropdownlist template

Solution The implementation of this functionality might lead to slow Grid performance. YES NO That's my small example of a code. I am not looking to make a drop down from HTML, because somewhere in my code I have data fetching for my dropdown, and it takes time to fetch that data. Reload to refresh your session. That's why I want to be able to do something like $("#myDropDown").setDataSource (/or however the correct syntax is. 'text/x-kendo-template' is used in Froogle. By default the widget displays only the text of the data item (configured via dataTextField). Is there a way to create a drop down list on the div tag, since that div is not actually a DOM object, and therefore I cannot select with a jQuery selector? Implement DropDownList Column Template | Kendo UI Grid for jQuery grid-dropdownlist-column-template grid, column, template, dropdownlist Product Progress Kendo UI Grid Progress Kendo UI version Created with the 2017.3.1026 version How can I make the drop-down list editors always visible in the Grid? You signed in with another tab or window. So 2 questions: How can I instantiate a kendo drop down from the template. var ddlDataSource = [{ value: 1, displayValue: "one" }, { value: 2, displayValue: "two" }, { value: 3, displayValue: "three" }]; $("#grid").kendoGrid({ columns: { field: "value", template: columnTemplateFunction } }, dataSource: [{ value: 1 }, { value: 2 }, { value: 3 }], dataBound: function(e) { var grid = e.sender; var items = e.sender.items(); items.each(function(e) { var dataItem = grid.dataItem(this); var ddt = $(this).find(".dropdownlist"); $(ddt).kendoDropDownList({ value: dataItem.value, dataSource: ddlDataSource, dataTextField: "displayValue", dataValueField: "value", change: onDDLChange }); }); }); function columnTemplateFunction(dataItem) { var input = " return input }; function onDDLChange(e) { var element = e.sender.element; var row = element.closest("tr"); var grid = $("#grid").data("kendoGrid"); var dataItem = grid.dataItem(row); dataItem.set("value", e.sender.value()); }); Page 2 You can't perform that action at this time. In the dataBound event handler, initialize a DropDownList for each input. Example - specify template as a function #: name # $("#dropdownlist").kendoDropDownList({ dataSource: [{ id: 1, name: "Apples" }, { id: 2, name: "Oranges" }], dataTextField: "name", dataValueField: "id", template: '#: name #' }); Was this demo helpful? title description type page title slug tags ticketid res_type component Make DropDownList Column Always Visible An example on how to add a DropDownList column template to the Kendo UI Grid. Total Posts: 16270Karma: 151368joined: 10/22/2008Location: RussiaHi J., Not sure if it works (haven't tested) and it's what you need. But anyway please have a look at the following links: and The template used to render the items. Use the columns.template configuration to add inputs to the column cells. $("#myDropDown").kendoDropDownList // invalid, item doesn't exist. If that's not possible, how to 'have' a dataSource.Changed event for my dropdown list, so I can update the data on my dropdown list.

In this example we show how to configure the Kendo UI grid to make use of the MVVM functionality exposed by the framework. For this purpose we create a viewmodel instance (with kendo.observable call) which wraps the grid data source, and instantiate the grid, its attributes and binding definition using data-attributes.
