Phish: It's More Than a Concert

Phish has inherited the legacy of the Grateful Dead. A responsibility that includes: playing a different set every night, constant jamming and experimenting. Phish is trailed across the country by adoring fans that think their heroes can do no wrong. What makes them so special is that their music winds together. It is full of freedom and happiness. Their lyrics are totally original; they have this weird way of looking at the world and when they express this in their songs it takes you to a whole different level of thinking.

Phish is one of the most amazing and unique bands that were ever founded. The music is a cross between bluegrass, folk and rock. The fans would pretty much do anything for this band, as they follow them around the country to different cities. In resemblance to the Grateful Dead (A Jam Band during the 70's and 80's), Phish puts on long shows with continuous jams. Each show being completely different from any of the other shows that they have performed drives fans to continue to follow this astonishing band. While each musician attended the University of Vermont, no one would have ever thought that this band would have made it huge. "Never thought I could make it this far, with a pain in my soul and a whole in my heart, never thought I could never thought I could but when the lights are turning round the wheels are flowing on the ground, the day I burn this whole place down when the circus comes to town” (Trey Anastasio).

If one should ever go to a Phish concert you wouldn't know what to expect because, every show is completely different. The peak of the band's talent was around 1996 when not many people heard of them. They never made the “who's on tour list” ...

...Maine. More than 80,000 fans show up to these events. These events are usually the cause of huge traffic jams and a three day party. People come from all over the world just to experience the sense of community, as well as the intriguing music.

Phish presents fascinating, phenomenal music, loyal fans, and spectacular live shows. This band has been together for about 20 years and is still going strong. They have had their ups and downs but they are still together and that's all that matters to their fans. “Fame can destroy what you set out to do and all that matters is that we are all still good friends” (Trey Anastasio). The best documentary about Phish is at a concert. I can not explain to you what they are about on paper. I can only give you hints. You need to experience it for yourself, because being at a Phish show is one of the happiest places on earth.
