Non-essential Conscription

As the war on terrorism continues more troops in Iraq and Afghanistan are dying every month. The government is struggling to organize the number of soldiers maintaining the opposition in both Afghanistan and Iraq which brings up a popular topic- conscription (mandatory military enlistment). Senator Charles Rangel of New York was the one that introduced the call for the military draft upon the Senate. The draft was revoked and still hasn't been in affect since the Vietnam War over thirty years ago. Reinstitution of conscription would not help this country right now, it will just make matters worse. It is not necessary to permit a draft in the United States because our advanced voluntary military should be able to control the defense of our country.

If years from now we are still fighting in operation Iraqi freedom and record numbers of troops are dropping, then congress should start to propose a draft, not now. They probably are pre-warning us right now yet won't actually pass this mandate until next year or months from today. Who knows, the government can construct a draft tomorrow if they feel that it's necessary.

A meeting between democrats and republicans took place in January this year regarding conscription. They basically discussed how and when this will take action. "The middle class and lower middle class should not be forced to bear the burden of fighting and dying if, in fact, this is a generational war.” (Senator Chuck Hagel-Republican from Nebraska) He and many other senators made it clear to the press that if there was a draft, then the majority of the upper middle class and upper class would be targeted to fight for our country. I agree simply because during the Vietnam War, many children of the higher social layers of society found any possible way to avoid the draft.

Our military defense has the most advanced weapons and protection system in the world. Ever since Bush took place in office, our taxes were contributing towards the expenses of the military. After watching the Department of Defense spend billions of dollars on military needs these last past four years, I wonder why they have to bring up this non-essential topic. This budget that Clinton actually proposed was $277.5 billion for the Sec...

...r paying rent and was in the best shape of my life. It wasn't that bad, also when I was deployed to Iraq I saved a lot of money and came back to the States feeling and living great. The reason why I got out is because I wanted to go to school.

Every person in the U.S. between the ages of 18-26 should be aware of this situation that can possibly happen. They should all have the right to be heard and share their opinions with the rest of the country instead of just the Pentagon, Senate, Legislatures and Politicians. They aren't the ones who are going to be forced to fight, we are, and we as the young people of society are the easiest intentions. From my knowledge and what I've seen while I was in the Army I can say that our armed forces are fine over in Iraq. We don't need to draft more troops for the war in Iraq. While conscription will ruin our country, another country will be benefited doesn't make sense.
