First-Position Chord Tricks

The D-C-G Trick

This particular sequence and unique chord voicing combination has spawned a lot of famous songs. The D itself is your standard, first-position D major chord. The chord that comes next is a beauty: the Cadd9 chord. Note the third finger should remain on the B string, third fret when changing from D to Cadd9. In fact, it remains in place as you change to the final finger-G chord as well.

I've given you two types of the Cadd9. For the examples below, we'll stick with the first type. If you've never played the four-finger G below, note the unique changing sound you get on the treble strings. Here's the first example in standard notation and tablature, showing you each chord that will be used.

EXAMPLE 1: Musical notation and guitar tablature for the D-C-G sequence. The notation shows a D chord, followed by a Cadd9 chord, and then a G chord. The tablature shows the corresponding fret numbers on the strings.

You could write a book on all the creative (and famous) ways this exact chord sequence can be embellished upon. What you see here is just the tip of the iceberg! Example 2 features a boom-boom-chick rhythm kicked off by the root note of the chord. Note the fun fact: note one that ends you back to the D chord!

EXAMPLE 2: Musical notation and guitar tablature for a rhythmic variation of the D-C-G sequence. The notation includes a boom-boom-chick rhythm pattern.
